Office of the Inspector General of Education in Mysore, Bangalore, 25th July 1912.

My dear Sir,

Your kind D.O. of yesterday regarding the appointment of a few Educational Probationers about whom I spoke to you on Sunday last. My reason for mentioning this subject was that on going through the list of Educational Officers given in the Civil List, I found that a number of them as given below were already above the age of 55 or would reach that age within the next two years or so.

1. Mr.C.Krishna Rao, 4 March 1858, Secretary to the Education Committee.
2. Mr.R.Raghunatha Rao, 19 January 1858, Head Master, High School, Chitaldrug.
3. Mr.S.Malhari Rao, 18 August 1857, Head Master, High School, Kolar.
4. Mr.P.R.Subramanya Sastri, 20 January 1858, Head Master, High School, Chikmagalur.
5. Mr.S.Venkatarama Sastri, 15 April 1853, Assistant Master, Maharaja's College, Mysore.
6. Mr.T.R.Venkataswamy Naidu, 18 May 1859, Inspector of Schools, Schools, Bangalore.

7. Mr.M.Srinivasa Rao, 6 November 1859, Inspector of Schools, Mysore.

8. Mr.M.K.Tirumalachar, 13 July 1859, Deputy Inspector of Schools, Chitaldrug.

Of the above Messrs Raghunatha Rao and Malhari Rao have already been ordered to retire and there is difficulty already felt to find suitable substitutes to replace them. This difficulty must only increase in the future as others retire, unless timely steps are taken to enlist proper recruits and give them a good training. Many of those in the Grade Rs.100 to Rs.210 who are fit to be Head Masters and Inspectors are already so or are employed in the Colleges from where it may not be convenient to disturb them. In these circumstances, I am strongly of opinion that three Probationers may for the present be entertained at once on a pay of Rs.50 each and after undergoing training for one year they may be given Rs.70 with annual increments of Rs.10 up to Rs.100, when they may be confirmed. Their future promotions to the higher grades will depend upon the good work they do and the qualifications they acquire for the place of Head Masters and Inspecting Officers, but as the primary object of entertaining probationers is to have a number of men who will be ready to gradually take up these places as they become vacant, care will be taken to make the initial selection so as to secure proper men ultimately for for the places mentioned. In the first year of training, the probationers will for some time be attached as tutors to either the Maharaja's College or the Central College and they will also be asked to improve their knowledge by making use of the books in the Educational Library. Their promotion to Rs.70 at the end of the first year will depend upon production of certificates from the Principals of the Colleges to which they are attached, of their having utilised their time well and gained experience in matters of teaching. W While they are in the Inspector General's Office, making use of the books in the Educational Library, they will be under the supervision of the Inspector General or of his Assistant. In this respect, the first year may be regarded as a sort of post-graduate course.

There are three M.A's available now and there is also a 1st class B.A. - (1) K.Srinivasaiya M.A., (2) Narainswamy Iyer M.A., (3) R.Raghunathachar M.A., L.T., (4) Venkatesa Iyengar B.A. The 1st is a native of Nanjangud, and the 4th is a son-in-law of Mr.A.Krishnaswamy Iyengar, Assistant Commissioner, (now at Maddagiri). The 2nd is a son-in-law of Mr.Sambasiva Iyer, Special Officer for Industrial Survey and the 3rd is a relation of Mr.K.R.Srinivasa Iyengar, Secretary to Government.

Yours truly,

T.Ananda Rao Esq., C.I.E.,

D.O.No. 69.

The Palace, Bangalore
14th August 1912.

My dear Sir,

His Highness observes that there is no rule or system about the appointment of Revenue Probationers to the Mysore Service. The result is that His Highness receives petitions at all times of the year from candidates possessing family or other claims. In special cases he directs the appointment of individual probationers, but this is obviously not a satisfactory arrangement.

His Highness would like you to kindly go into the whole question and to fix a regular scale of vacancies of Revenue Probationers to be filled up at stated periods either once a year or once every six months. Once this scale is fixed and a permanent register of all applicants maintained, His Highness will be able to dispose of applications systematically and the body of Probationers thus appointed may form the recruiting ground from which a portion of the men appointed as Probationery -

Assistant Commissioners under schedule B will be selected, the remainder being promoted from the ranks of the Amildars and other subordinate services on grounds of approved merit.

In regard to individual appointments His Highness has recently asked you to submit proposals for appointing Messrs Sangappa and Siddaraj Urs as Revenue probationers. His Highness now directs me to add Messrs K.P.Mallappa, son of Mr.Puttanna, and Krishnamurti Naidu, son of Nagabhushanam Naidu, to the above two names. Both these individuals have strong family claims and if, as His Highness believes it is possible now to appoint four or more Probationers without unduly swelling the ranks of the Public Service, he would like you to kindly send up the four names above mentioned with a formal recommendation for his orders. If a larger number than four can be appointed would you kindly send up your own recommendations for the remaining appointments with a register of the various applicants.

Yours sincerely,

T.Ananda Rao, Esq., C.I.E.,

Of two legends which furnished the classical poet Kalidasa with the plots of two his most famous dramas, one is told in detail, and the other is at least alluded to. The story of the love and separation of Purūravas and Urvasi, already dimly shadowed forth in a hymn of the Rigveda, is here related with much more fulness; while Bharata, the son of Dushanta and of the nymph Sakuntala, also appears on the scene in this Brahmana

A most interesting legend which reappears in the Mahābārata, that of the Deluge, is here told for the first time in Indian literature though it seems to be alluded to in the Atharva-veda while it is known even to the Avesta. This myth is generally regarded as derived from a Semitic Source

The first and indispensable requisite of happiness is a clear conscience, unsullied by the reproach or remembrance of an unworthy action.

I am endowed with a cheerful temper, a moderate sensibility, and a natural disposition to repose rather than to activity: some mischievous appetites and habits have perhaps been corrected by philosophy or time. The love of study, a passion which derives a fresh vigour from enjoyment, supplies each day, each hour, with a perpetual source of independent and rational pleasure; and I am not sensible of any decay of the mental faculties. The original soil has been highly improved by cultivation; but it may be questioned whether some flowers of fancy, some grateful errors, have not been eradicated with the weeds of prejudice.

10. Qualifications.

He is a B.A of the Madras University and an LL.B of the Bombay University. He took his B.A degree with Honours for his optional language.

11. Other particulars which the applicant wishes to state.

(1) The applicant comes of a family which in the past did magnificent & meritorious service to the Royal throne of Mysore. As proof of this he begs to invite your Excellency's gracious attention to Rajavamsavali p/s 356–59 or Rice's History of Mysore Vol (1) p/s 630–31.

(2) That the applicant was a companion of the Sri Sri Sri Yuvaraja of Mysore for a period of 9 years and as such has a special training from a young age to qualify himself in life

When conducting your case my advice to you is, do not under any circumstances be ambitious and try to distinguish yourself. but resort to efforts at eloquence or wild declamation. I know the instance of a Barrister who was defending an accused person at the criminal Sessions of the High court. It was in the very early days of his practice. He conducts his case with ability but in an unguarded moment in his address to the jury he quotes Shakespeare. For months afterward he could not show himself in court or cross the corridor without some mischievous person bursting into "The quality of Mercy is not strained". The trial results in a conviction and although the conviction was a just one and the Counsel had done his best for his client if did not prevent mischievous boys — of which there are plenty in the High court — from attributing the conviction to Shakespeare's poetry
